We are also manufacturers' agents for The Boston Transcript has the folowing about Harvard's new art museim: An interesting statement, having official weight, is printed in the March umber of the Harvard Graduates Magazine on the foundation, endownent, purposes and scope of the Fogg Art museum, or to give it its full name, "William Hayes Fogg Art Mu-seum of Harvard College." This statenent comes from Martin Brimmer and Edward W. Hooper, the building com-mittee, who first quote the bequest of Mrs. Fogg, then report what has been done up to date under its conditions, and finally outline the general policy of ing satisfaction certainly is not a burgain.

o be made of the building. The building, designed by Richard M. Hunt, is perfectly appropriate, dig-nified and unobjectionable, but it is wholly at variance with the surround ing structures. The sum spent on the building is about $150,000, leaving a fund of about $70,000 for its mainte nance and the purchase of works of art. The terms of Mrs. Fogg's bequest are, as the building committee remarks remarkably wise and liberal, for, after providing a dignified and lasting memo rial building, they leave the college almost wholly free to carry out in the best manner Mrs. Fogg's public spirited and intelligent wish "for the education and enlightenment of the people in espect to art and the work of artists."

With regard to the immediate uses o the building the committee states that it's small size prohibits the exhibitio of many large works of arts, and that its permanent collections should be limted to things of great importance they must naturally consist mainly of photographs, casts and "other secondary evidence" as to the greatest masterpieces of art. But the committee expresses the hope, surely not extravagant, that the intelligence, liberality and good fortune of the alumni and the riends of the college will in due time oring to the museum many original works of art of high quality and per-nanent value. The intimate co-operative relationship existing between the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and Harvard college is point ed out with particular clearness in this article. It is stated that the Gray collection and the John Witt Randall co lection of engravings will probably be allowed to remain in the museum in Boston, although special collections of prints arranged by Mr. Koehler may from time to time be transferred from Boston to Cambridge for temporary exhibitions.

AN EX-JUDGE OF PROBATE

Commits Suicide by Hanging Himself. Hartford, April 1.-John C. Roberts, ex-judge of probate, committed suicide by hanging at Simsbury yesterday morning. During the absence of his family at church he went an upper room and hung himself to a beam. His body was cold when the family returned.

Mr. Roberts had been in poor health for several months and yesterday morning excused himself from going to church on account of an alleged bad headache. It is thought that his sickness had preyed upon his mind an made him insane, Judge Calef Retires.

Middletown, April 1 .- A. B. Calef was retired to-day as judge of the city court on account of age limitation, after twelve years of service. He is suc-ceeded by W. U. Pearne, for sixteen-years clerk of the city court.

When my little girl was one month old, she had a scab form on her face. It kept spreading until she was completely covered from head to foot. Then she had boils. She had forty on her head at one time, and more on her body. When six months old she did not weigh seven pounds, a pound and a half less than at birth. Then her skin started to dry up and got so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep, but lay with them half open. About this time, I started using the CUTICURA RIMEDIES, and is one month she reas completely cared. The doctor and drug bills were over one hundred dollars, the CUTICURA bill was not more than fee dollars. My child is now strong, healthy, and large as any child of her age (see photo.), and it is all owing to CUTICURA. Yours with a Mother's Riessing.
